

The Gingerbread Man

There was a gingerbread man who escaped from the baker who was going to eat him.

He came across a river. There was a little sheep smiling sweetly who had a paddle boat that said, if he helped paddle, they could both cross the river together. Or there was a sleek fox licking his lips that had a speed boat who said the gingerbread man could jump on his boat and didn't have to do anything, just travel in style.

The gingerbread man jumped onto the fox's boat and they set off. Half way across the river the fox stopped the boat and chomped the gingerbread man down in one bite.
