

The Mystery of Grandma's Cottage

Windows were broken.
Trails of fur led into
the dangerous forest.

Little Red Riding Hood, 13, followed the
cobblestone path.

Last week the mystery began when Little Red Riding Hood travelled to her Grandma's cottage, but on the way the wolf stopped her in her tracks. It appeared that the wolf had a big belly.

When Little Red Riding Hood arrived at Grandma's she found a colossal mess and Grandma lying on the floor!

When we spoke to Little Red Riding Hood, she wept, "I was shocked to see Grandma on the floor." When we asked her what happened, she said,

"I imagine some sort of wild animal came in and killed my Grandma but I'm still on the hunt for who did it!"

We contacted the local Police Station and they told us, "All we found was a paw print and a note that said we have met before."

People are still on the hunt for who is responsible.

Police are looking for this witness described as tall, muscly and furry with one red eye. If you have any information then dial 999. Do not approach him as he might be dangerous.
